MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Bureau is to improve the economy of greater Houston by attracting national and international conventions, trade shows, tourists and film projects to the area through sales, marketing and public relations efforts.

STRUCTURE & FUNDING

The Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Bureau (GHCVB) is a 501(c)(6) nonprofit corporation. The GHCVB is a marketing and service organization with a budget presently comprised of certain reserved funds and private funds raised through a variety of sources including investments in events, membership dues, advertising and in-kind contributions.

At the beginning of 2014, the GHCVB’s primary source of funding was from a contract with the City of Houston which was assigned to Houston First Corporation (HFC) in 2011; however, this contract expired June 30, 2014. This contract funded approximately 92% of the GHCVB’s budget from a tax on hotel/motel occupancy within the incorporated boundaries of Houston, Texas.

Upon expiration of the contract, the GHCVB and HFC boards approved a strategic realignment between the two organizations to create a more efficient approach to marketing and selling Houston to tourists and conventions. As part of that agreement, GHCVB employees became employees of Houston First Corporation while the GHCVB maintained its own board of directors and gained seats on the HFC board. With the realignment, the GHCVB has enhanced resources available — both human and financial.
Dear Members,

There’s no question about it. This is a great time to be in Houston’s hospitality business and its related sectors.

Our town and the entire Gulf Coast region are enjoying growth despite the downturn in the energy sector. Some have experienced job loss, for sure, but to be certain this kind of inevitable economic cycle is something we know how to endure. In fact, some businesses have found ways to thrive.

Houston continues to experience new hotel construction and that benefits our membership and better positions us to sell Houston as a destination. Residential construction, both downtown and in the surrounding areas, will create additional retail and restaurant offerings, which are key elements for attracting visitors.

The media is also recognizing our city as one of the top cultural and culinary destinations in the nation. Houston has a long history of blazing new trails and leading through innovation. This passionate drive, plus our remarkable collaboration between the public and private sectors, is making Houston a better place to live, work and play.

As you will read in the ensuing pages, 2015 was another year with positive year-over-year results in all departments. Nevertheless, technology continues to alter both business and leisure pursuits in ways that require daily monitoring. And, as each member can vouch for, the speed at which these changes take place can be confounding.

That is why Visit Houston continually works to establish, and then refine, metrics to define success. We build and develop strategic plans by segment and then adjust our benchmarks based on results. I want the Visit Houston team to be recognized as one of the most progressive, innovative, nimble and customer-centric sales and marketing organizations in the country. I firmly believe that our resources, talent, vision and alignment give us a competitive advantage against other cities.

As we elevate our game, I ask that our members, partners, hoteliers and board members follow suit. Now is the time to further demonstrate the value of tourism in Houston. To enhance that visitor experience, we have to improve transportation, better connect areas of our city, and continue to market the total Houston brand. Unveiling the new assets around the George R. Brown Convention Center will continue to be a priority.

The future could not be more exciting for our city. Everyone knows the Super Bowl is coming here in a few months. And just like the NCAA Final Four held here this year, Houston will shine as few other host cities have. Houston is a premier destination. Let’s enjoy the spotlight!

Your team is poised and ready to serve you, our board, our members, our customers and our city.

MIKE WATERMAN
President, Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Bureau

2015 KEY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

732,967 CONVENTION AND MEETING ROOM NIGHTS BOOKED

144,590 ROOM NIGHTS BOOKED THROUGH INTERNATIONAL LEISURE AND REUNIONS

6 million VISITORS THROUGH THE VISIT HOUSTON NETWORK OF WEBSITES

140 members ADDED TO THE CITY’S LARGEST NETWORK OF HOSPITALITY BUSINESSES

$54.4 million GENERATED FOR LOCAL ECONOMY THROUGH FILM AND COMMERCIAL PROJECTS
Dear Members,

What a ride we are on! As you know, Houston enjoyed tremendous exposure from hosting the NCAA Final Four earlier this year and now we are currently readying the city to host Super Bowl LI in February. I cannot think of another time during my decades in the hospitality business when Houston has had more opportunity to spotlight our great city to the rest of the world.

Gone are the days of feeling second to other destinations. With increasing strength in everything from attractions to the arts, culinary to lodging, Houston’s hospitality sector can hold its head high. I hear it among my peers in the hotel industry and beyond, this is an unprecedented time. And as you will see in this report, the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Bureau is taking advantage of this chance to make our city even better. New records were achieved in many departments last year and I know, with Mike Waterman’s continued leadership, even more great things are still to come.

As this organization continues its record of achievement, I ask that our members, partners and board members follow suit. Now is the time to further demonstrate the value of tourism in Houston. To enhance that visitor experience, we have to improve transportation, better connect areas of our city and continue to market the total Houston brand. I believe re-imagination of the convention district, which will be complete later this year, will help us to market and sell the Houston experience like never before.

Thank you for your service as a member of our organization. These days, Houston’s star is shining brighter than ever. And I’m confident that the team we’ve put together will continue to capitalize on the great opportunities that lie ahead.

Houston just might be the most surprising city in America. This big-business town has always had a soft spot for world-class art: Its oak-tree-lined Museum District has 20 institutions, including the privately assembled Menil Collection, the Museum of Fine Arts, and the non-denominational Rothko Chapel.

There is no shortage of beautiful weirdness in the country’s fourth-largest city. A city that pleases everybody sounds too good to be true, but with endless dining options that will satisfy any foodie, vast brewery selections, colorful theaters and drama productions of every genre, a fierce music scene and an architectural history that’s unmatched, Greater Houston just might be that place.

Houston is one of the great eating capitals of America. Once the domain of 10-gallon hats and plate-sized belt buckles, Space City now has an edgier vibe. These days you’re just as likely to glimpse suave Gucci-clad loafers, Louisvillian pocket squares and fedoras as you are cowboy dude regalia.奔跑着的厨师，先驱艺术家，hipster农民和denizens with a yen for ecology will all find their place.

Houston will surprise you. The city has been referred to...
The mission of the Destination Sales department is to generate and convert the greatest possible number of hotel room-nights from trade shows, conventions, meetings and special events while promoting and selling the Houston area as a world-class meeting destination. The Sales team strives to reach its annual goals through direct sales activity and meeting planner networking during attendance at major industry events and trade shows, direct marketing and city hosted visits.

In addition to citywide conventions, the sales team also facilitates single-hotel, in-house groups. In 2015, the Destination Sales team contracted 460 groups for a total of 732,967 room-nights, achieving 118% of its annual goal.

Groups using convention facilities afford the opportunity to place business in multiple hotels and among our hospitality partners. This year, the Sales team secured 69 contracts for groups with meetings convening at the George R. Brown or NRG convention centers.

The Tourism department is charged with the promotion of the Greater Houston area as a destination with the goal of increasing leisure travel to Houston. These efforts are measured in increased returns for area hotels, attractions, restaurants and others in the hospitality sector. The department is also tasked with working with the Houston hospitality industry to assist in leisure promotional efforts and encourage the creation of new leisure products.

Tourism actively works with domestic and international travel trade, including wholesalers, online agencies and tour operators in order to reach the traveling consumer. The Tourism team participates in travel and consumer trade shows and organizes marketing missions for travel media and travel professionals, plus incentives for travel professionals, plus travel agents. The department also handles visits to Houston by international media and manages the Spanish-language Visit Houston Texas.com and social media presence to generate exposure for Houston in Spanish-speaking countries.

Tourism secured 144,590 leisure room nights from international markets by working with wholesalers, tour operators, receptives and travel agents as well as focusing on the reunions market.

On the international PR front, the department secured 748 media placements, with a total of 9.8 million impressions which generated $11.3 million in positive media value for the year. The Spanish language website Visit Houston Texas.com logged more than 442,000 visits in 2015, a 78% increase over the prior year. The accompanying Twitter and Facebook accounts grew to more than 4,000 and 13,680, respectively in 2015. The department also trained 5,005 travel professionals around the world on how to sell Houston as a leisure destination, more than double the department’s annual goal.

In 2015, Houston developed and awarded the first Houston Tourism Summit, giving members the opportunity to interact, find out more about Tourism’s new direction and to learn about marketing opportunities to promote their products to leisure travelers.

Finally, the Tourism department led an effort to create a cooperative marketing initiative for regional destination marketing organizations under the Visit Houston umbrella. Visit Houston and Beyond includes the cities of Alvin, Beaumont, Conroe, Galveston, Baytown, Deer Park, Sugar Land, and Texas City. Partners come together on a monthly marketing effort and plans are underway to attend major trade and consumer shows.

In 2015, Houston developed and awarded the first Houston Tourism Summit, giving members the opportunity to interact, find out more about Tourism’s new direction and to learn about marketing opportunities to promote their products to leisure travelers.

The Tourism Summit further served an opportunity to unveil the Houston First Matching Grant Program. The program allows hospitality partners to partner up to $100,000 in funding for initiatives that could directly bring travelers to Houston from beyond a 150-mile radius. In 2015, there were 25 applicants for the program of which 14 groups received grants to promote their products. A total of $250,000 in grants were awarded.

The Destination Services team is comprised of Destination Events, Destination Services and Employee Engagement.

The Destination Events team coordinated more than 43 events throughout the year, expanding their reach to additional internal departments at Houston First (Marketing, Tourism, Membership, Human Resources and Partnerships and Event Development), establishing the department as the “go to resource” for event logistics.

The team supported Sales in the organization and coordination of pre-planning, dynamic site inspections, facilltiation visits, special events, sales missions, sponsorships and key industry shows, achieving a 97% excellent/good rating from participating industry partners. Booths for Services’ promotional trips, Tourism and Sales events were updated to showcase the Convention District’s participation in upcoming NCAA Final Four and Super Bowl LI events.

Employee Engagement executed a total of 21 employee events, maintaining an overall Excellent/Good rating of 92%.

The Destination Services team conducted 84 planning sessions, exceeding the 2015 goal. The team continues to expand the Destination Awareness Program, exceeding the 2015 goal of 22 events. The program helps connect the GHCVB with members, city departments and the community to more effectively communicate the economic impact of conventions.

In 2015 the team conducted numerous attendance promotional trips representing 183,999 room nights and 173,360 attendees, with the goal of showcasing Houston as the host for their next meeting. Services provides education and insight into Houston and promotes the city as a meeting destination.

The mission of the Membership department is to develop and implement programs that support membership growth, revenue and retention, through education, engagement, and economic opportunity. The Membership department works with all other divisions to support and promote the organization’s overall objective of attracting, converging, engaging, and visitors to Houston. This collaboration enhances the membership program, helping retain existing members and grow the base. The alignment with Houston First has continued to expand business opportunities for members and make membership more attractive.

The primary Membership goal is to increase the core membership base of 1,200 organizations by implementing a strategic plan to actively identify and convert business prospects into members.

A total of 140 new members were added in 2015. Membership met their membership engagement goals with 6 engagements and member connection business opportunities. This included a Houston Super Bowl Business Showcase, a Summit Connector, Certified Tourism Ambassador Rally, and membership involvement with the inaugural Houston Tourism Summit. The Annual Membership Appreciation Holiday Open House recognized 19 members for being event sponsors and contributing goods and services throughout the year.

In 2015, Partnerships & Event Development showed healthy growth with its current portfolio of invested events and launched its latest collaboration – the Space Commerce Conference and Expo (SpaceCom).

SpaceCom, executed in collaboration with NASA-Johnson Space Center, kicked off in November 2015 with grand honors and a stimulating program. With more than 50 credentialed media, attendees from 32 states and 23 countries, it’s clear that there’s a market for the next generation of space. The more than 1,700 attendees were treated to keynotes from NASA Administrator Charles Bolden and other CEO leaders from the rapidly expanding space commerce field.

Comicpalooza continued to be an economic engine with a 25% increase in attendance to 40,000 for the Memorial Day Weekend event, while producing over 16,000 room nights during a traditional slow period for the city.

Medical World Americas (MWA) increased its attendance to over 2,300 and strengthened the relationship and partnership with the Texas Medical Center, which continues to serve as an anchor for the event in Houston. With medical meetings being a key growth opportunity for Houston, MWA continues to be a flag in the pursuit to highlight Houston’s medical assets and relationship with the TMC and its institutions.

The Marketing department promotes the Greater Houston area as a convention, business and touristic destination. These efforts include advertising, public relations, sponsorship, special events, promotions, website and collateral development.

The more people the organization is able to reach, the greater its influence. In 2015, just over 6 million people visited the Houston CVB’s web network, which includes: VisitHouston.com, VisitHoustonNow.com (Spanish), VisitHouston.net, MyGayHouston.com, HoustonCultureGuide.com, DishItOut.com and HoustonInventions.com, representing a 30% increase over the previous year.

Moreover, the network of websites generated 187,000 room nights and $116 million from the leisure visitor market.

The 2016 advertising efforts included a national print campaign in the Wall Street Journal and digital placement in the New York Times’ news, lifestyle and dining sections. The local TV and cable broadcast ads aired in the Texas and Louisiana markets featuring the My Houston campaign. New in 2016 and also part of the My Houston campaign, a new TV spot was produced and aired featuring Kam Franklin and The Suffers. The TV spot showcased Market Square Park and the Downtown Mural, as well as referenced iconic Houston landmarks.

The international advertising efforts increased with dedicated media buys targeting key markets in Mexico, including Guadalajara, Monterrey and Mexico City. Marketing’s domestic public relations efforts placed Houston in the national spotlight with more than 300 media placements generated by pitches and media visits. These placements contributed to $18 million in positive publicity for the city in 2015. High profile placements included pieces in the Washington Post, Forbes Travel, USA Today, the Wall Street Journal and Travel + Leisure.

The mission of the Houston Film Commission is to increase the number of film and video projects shot in the Houston area and build a sustainable film infrastructure. A healthy film industry provides jobs to film crews, helps the local economy, expands the tax base and enhances the image and visibility of the greater Houston community.

In 2015, the Houston Film Commission recorded 210 film and video projects representing 855 shooting days. Direct spending locally by the film industry in 2015 totaled $18.5 million with a total economic impact of $54.4 million.

Major projects filmed in Houston in 2015 included commercials for Vodafone, Nike, Ford, Bose and Taco Bell. The latter, directed by one of the 10 best directors in 2015, also featured rapper 2 Chainz. The video was tweeted about 22,000 times per minute the first day of release and won Best Music Video during the 2016 Brit Awards.

The Houston Film Commission also continues to have a strong presence at major industry events including the Los Angeles, Austin, Dallas and Houston Film Festivals. These events allow the Commission to network with producers, filmmakers, and more effectively market the Houston region as a film and video destination.

The elements of the Visitor Information Services/Retail Operations include information mail request fulfillment, the Houston Visitor Center/Gift Shop at Hilton Americas and the Explore Houston gift shop in the George R. Brown Convention Center.

The mission of the Visitor Information Services department is to increase visitor attendance as well as length of visitor stays and encourage repeat visitors through providing relevant visitor information, attractive retail merchandise and a quality visitor experience.

The department is also responsible for increasing revenue and maximizing profit generated by the Houston First retail operations.

In 2015, this department generated net sales of $138,725, a 22.8% increase over the previous year. Visitor contacts, including walk-ins, phone calls and mailings, came to 79,458, 119.5% of goal.
